Mr. Palchikoff structures and negotiates sophisticated joint ventures (usually as limited liability companies) with institutional investors, as well as handling purchases, sales, mergers, options and various business combinations arising in the real estate industry.

Mr. Palchikoff also has special expertise representing clients in golf course and country club community development and golf course sales, which has involved handling such diverse matters as negotiation of financing and development joint ventures, loan agreements, engineering, construction and consulting contracts and golf course and club operating agreements, structuring membership plans and related documents, advising on advertising materials, processing of development entitlements (e.g., maps, annexations, improvement agreements, development agreements and security arrangements), and drafting and coordinating of CC&Rs, real estate sales documents and matters involving the California Department of Real Estate and other agencies.
